Internet Access Student Form

The Department of Education (DOE) Internet services are designed for DOE K-12 students and educators. They can be accessed via a computer and a modem at school or home and provide access to the Internet, a worldwide telecommunications network. Internet provides a large amount of valuable information available from computers at colleges, universities, and government agencies.

The DOE Internet services are designed to guide its users in navigating through the vast resources and also to minimize the possibility of students accessing materials that are inappropriate for minors. However, the Department of Education, University of Hawaii, Budget and Finance Information and Communication Services Division and Maui High Performance Computing Center cannot guarantee that such materials will not be accessed.

There is not charge to the student for using this system.
